

Shame on Muslims, Not Islam.

Ameer Kabour, M.D.

There is a crisis around the world where a few Radical Muslims shatter Islam's image, Muslim's faith, and a Muslim's credibility. This forces us to ask ourselves, what are the reasons that we (Muslims) are losing the respect and sympathy of the world and now find ourselves in a justified zone of hate and fear?

These reasons started with radical Muslims. Radical Muslims who gave themselves the right to speak on behalf of all Muslims. The promotion of radical Islamic thinking along with their ambition for destruction has led to all of the bloodshed in the Middle East and the massacres between Muslims. It has led them to finish the crimes in Paris, killing innocent people. The same innocent people who allowed these radical Muslims the freedom to come to their country to practice and express their faith.

These are radicals who never dare open their mouth or blink an eye in their home countries. These are radicals who are coward enough to show their strength only when given freedom elsewhere, but never near their place of birth. Instead of thanking these other countries for accepting Muslims, allowing us a chance for a better life, allowing us to become something, we find these radicals want to bring down those nations to their level of retardation, poverty, and destruction. Instead of learning from the good, the ethics, the responsibility, and democracy, these radicals want to take other countries back thousands of years, under the umbrella of religion.

The unfortunate element here are the Muslims who still believe they are the victims and drive themselves into this level of self-destruction. They still give excuses to those radical killers in Paris, Syria and everywhere. Let me correct that theory and maybe give guidance to those who excuse the radicals. Let me give a summary of our reason into retardation, our misunderstanding of our own religion, our (sorry to say it) stupidity as it's getting worse every day...

All Muslims have to stop the denial and recognize the problems. We need to scream out loud, say NO to radicals, and reject them in societies. Muslims should call on those radicals before they enforce their beliefs on others, to try to follow it themselves. Islam is very clear to do the right, avoid the bad, be honest, fair, ethical, and protect the innocent.

Let's me answer the big question, How far as Muslims have we adopted our religion? We are the most corrupt in the world, the biggest liars on earth, the most abuser to women and kids, the worst dictators. We are the worst criminals in this civilization, killing our families, killing each other's, killing people from all religions, and yet we find excuses for our action by misinterpreting our own religion. We listen to radical clerks who keep changing the roles to satisfy the level of their crimes. Other reasons include the weakness of the moderate Muslim's, because we see the wrongdoing, but we cover our eyes to perpetuate the denial. We hear about all those crimes and we turn our heads to claim never heard. We smell the dirt of those behaviors and abuse and we claim we never smell. We see our religion taken a way by radicals and killers, and we still claiming our history of peaceful religion. We see our kids future are threatened, and we still claim the future could be better because we should prevail. We claim the love to people, but the hate of the radicals and our silence about their actions is louder. We claim the peaceful religion, and yet we have started every war in the last many years. We claim fairness only when it comes to ourselves, and we forget how others deserve the same. We want people to respect our religion, yet consider any other religion inferior and even going as far as to claim the death penalty for not choosing Islam. Time for all of us Muslims to wake up, to scream, to fight and start a new era...

Time to tell those radical Muslims, enough is enough. We do not need your ridiculous interpretation of our religion.

Time to stop our blindness and open our eyes. We need to reject all of these radicals out of our life and societies.

Time to open our ears and listen to what the whole world is saying. Otherwise we will be isolated like criminals who deserve punishment.

Time to inhabit our real values. Live the lives we want before we enforce false agenda and ridiculous roles on others, or even sympathies with that.

Time to focus on us and correct our negative behaviors before we look at others negative as some see it.

Time to respect other opinions instead of killing everyone not in agreement with the radicals..

Time to stop resisting freedom of speech when opinions differ from our own. Even if it does not serve our own purpose.

Time to focus on our improving our society with freedom, science, and civilization.

And the most important fact, to open our heart to the world, listen to others, love all people regardless color, sex, or religion.

I am ashamed of those Muslims who have skewed the Islam image into what it is today.

I am ashamed of those Muslims who sympathized with those killers and radicals.

I am ashamed of those Muslims who fear to speak out loud against radicals and say STOP.

I am ashamed of those Muslim clerks who changed Islam for their own interest.

I am ashamed of Muslims living in the western countries enjoying gifted freedom, and then using that for killing and destruction.

I am ashamed of Muslims killing and destroying each other under the name of Islam and freedom.

I am ashamed of Muslim's leaders when they are killing their own people and driving these radicals to be more powerful and reasoning for their crimes.

I am not afraid to say shame on all of us Muslims. May we recognize our problems, our illogical behavior, fix our image, and bring the real Islamic value of love and peace to our life as an action not words. May we clean our dirt, sterilize our soul, and believe in freedom, peace and love as a standard of life.
